

JOHN LYON'S CHARITY

Dr Shenila Rawal

Shenila is an applied education economist. She has extensive experience in leading and conducting large-scale evaluations and research projects working to ensure robust, equitable and evidence-based policy and practice in education. She has authored several papers and lectures at Masters' and PhD level on a range of topics in the field of economics of education such as student learning and non-cognitive outcomes, teachers and teaching, labour markets, non-state education, political economy of education systems and issues of equity and marginalisation. She holds several governance positions at a range of organisations that support beneficiaries in the UK and internationally.